Laura Candler

All 18 math games in this bundle are highly effective for stimulating mathematical thinking and discussion because players must justify their answers in order to score points. All of the games are suitable for upper elementary students, and many can be adapted for other grade levels. Most can be used in a whole group setting, with partners, in cooperative learning teams, or in math centers. Click each game below to find it on TpT where you can preview it and read reviews from teachers who have used the game with their students.
