

Dear Parent,

Soon our class will be taking part in a special letter-writing activity. What's special about this activity? The letters they will write will be delivered to themselves in the future! One reason I'm sharing this with you is that I need your help with delivering the letters. Let me explain the two options below and you can choose the one that is right for your son or daughter.

- Letters can be typed online and submitted to the FutureMe.org website. It will be delivered to a given email address on the date selected. If your child does not have an email address, you can have it sent to your own address and print it out for your child when it arrives. Please note that FutureMe.org is a public website and may contain some questionable content in the form of advertising or public letters. Because of this, I am offering the option to have an adult enter the student letters. If you want to allow your child to enter his or her own letter online, please visit www.futureme.org to prior to selecting the first option on the response form below.
- A hard copy of the letter can be home in a sealed envelope for you to keep. The envelope would show the delivery date and it would be your responsibility to give the letter to your child on that date. If you are worried that you'll forget, you can set an electronic reminder for yourself that includes the place where you are storing the letter.
- A hard copy can be placed in a self-addressed, stamped envelope for me to mail in the future.

As we prepare to write our letters, we will be brainstorming topics such as personal interests and hobbies, current events in the world, future goals, etc. If you have any ideas for this assignment, share them with your child to help prepare them for the activity. Please complete the form below, sign it, and return it by the date shown below. Thanks for your support with this project!

Sincerely,

Mrs. Laura Candler
