

Summer is Here!

It's been a great year! We are in need of a break. Even though summer is filled with days of vacation and swimming, you may want to think about what you could do to help your child retain what they've worked so hard to learn this school year.

I recommend getting some summer school workbooks, reading every day, and spending time learning with your child. I've found a great resource for making learning fun and I wanted to pass it along to you. School Sticks!

School Sticks are a DIY project that you can do to help your child study up this summer. There are three categories: Reading, Writing, and Math. Most of the tasks can easily be completed by your child.

Your child will need to read 30 minutes a day and do 2-3 School Sticks 5 days a week. In doing 2-3 tasks a day, your child will keep their skills sharp. You can download two weeks of School Sticks for free from this website.

www.thetutorhouse.blogspot.com/p/summer-helps.html

This page is full of other helpful resources, videos, and how to's for working with your child this summer.

Brought to you by: CorkboardConnections.com and The-Tutor-House.com